

Belgian Association of Anglicists in Higher Education

Since its foundation in 1981, the Belgian Association of Anglicists in Higher Education has brought together anglicists working in the fields of literature and cultural studies, linguistics and translation studies, and ELT.

BAAHE membership offers access to or entails:

The most extensive network of anglicists in the Benelux

We offer a unique forum that circulates information relevant for anyone involved in English studies in higher education in a Benelux context. We communicate regularly via e-mail as well as the web (www.baahe.be and www.facebook.com/baahe.be) to circulate calls for papers, vacancies, announcements, and other news of interest to anglicists.

The BAAHE Annual Conference

Each year in autumn a different institution hosts the BAAHE one-day conference with papers in all domains BAAHE represents. Every few years we also organise a larger international conference.

The BAAHE Thesis Award

BAAHE offers an annual prize of 250 EUR for outstanding undergraduate dissertations written in English, alternating between literature and cultural studies in one year and linguistics and translation studies in the next.

English Text Construction: An international peer-reviewed journal

English Text Construction (ETC) is an international, double-blind peer-reviewed journal, published twice a year by John Benjamins (www.englishtextconstruction.be). All BAAHE members receive a print copy of the journal (ca. 300 pp. per year). Note that regular individual subscriptions to ETC alone amount to EUR 70, so BAAHE membership (at EUR 40 or, for tenured members, EUR 55 a year) constitutes a considerable discount.

ESSE – A European network

Being a BAAHE member automatically means being part of a community of lecturers and researchers across more than 30 countries in Europe. Each BAAHE member is also a member of the European Society for the Study of English (ESSE; www.essenglish.org) and receives its newsletter (The Messenger) as part of this membership (as of 2016, the Messenger will evolve into an open-access peer-reviewed journal). ESSE also publishes the European Journal of English Studies, and organises a biannual conference for which BAAHE members receive a substantial discount and can submit proposals for sub-plenary lectures; the next venues are Galway (2016) and Brno (2018).

In order to join, consult the Membership section of our website www.baahe.be!

www.baahe.be

www.facebook.com/baahe.be

www.englishtextconstruction.be

